Bright Lights at Night

by Kristen Woo
illustrated by Doug Bowles

It is fun to hike at night. If it is late at night, gaze up. You might see a big, bright moon. It is a fine sight!

The moon can look like a bright, white pie. It is not as bright as the sun, but its beams can light up the black night.

You might see stars at night. Their light is not as bright as the moon. They seem like white pin holes high up.

There are lots and lots of bright stars. They seem like a huge stream of bright, white lights in the black night.

One time I tried to gaze at stars in a scope at night. They seemed up close.

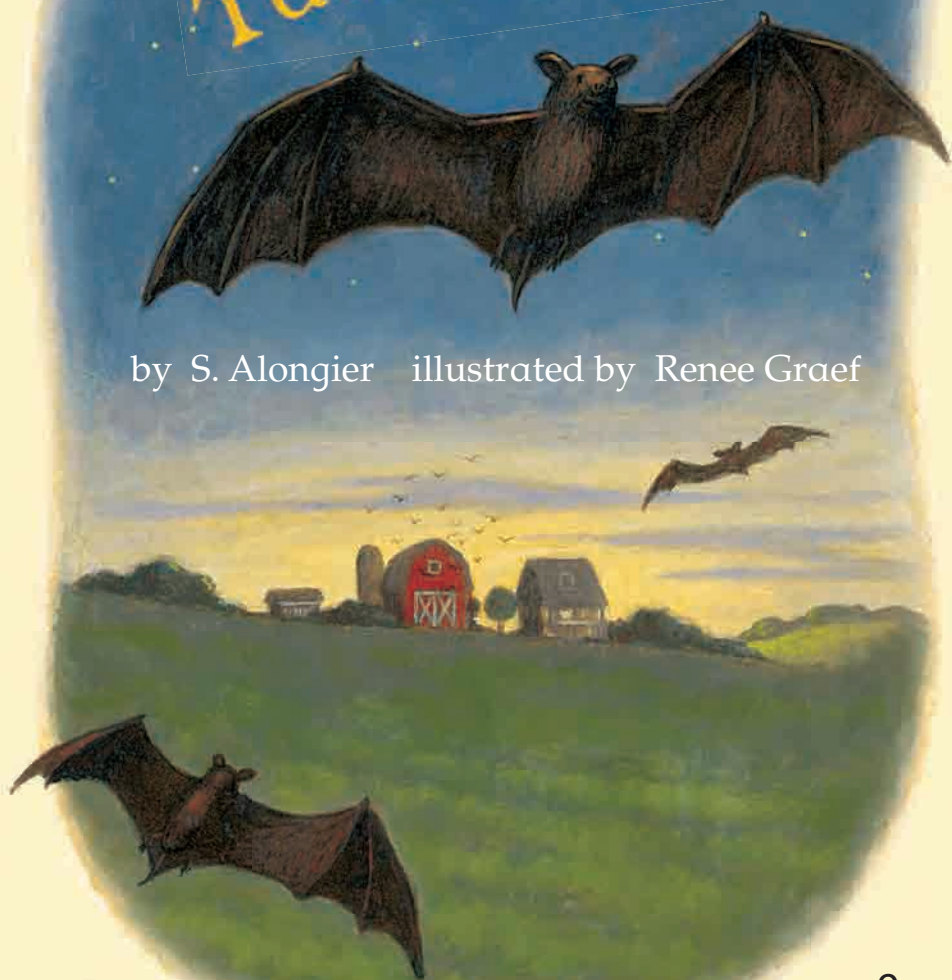

On some nights, you can not see the moon and stars. You will need a light at night. It seems like you went in a black cave.

The next time it is late at night,
gaze up high and see bright lights.

Bats Take Flight

by S. Alongier illustrated by Renee Graef

It is not yet night, but the light is dim. Mom tells Dwight, "Sit tight. Soon the bats will take flight."

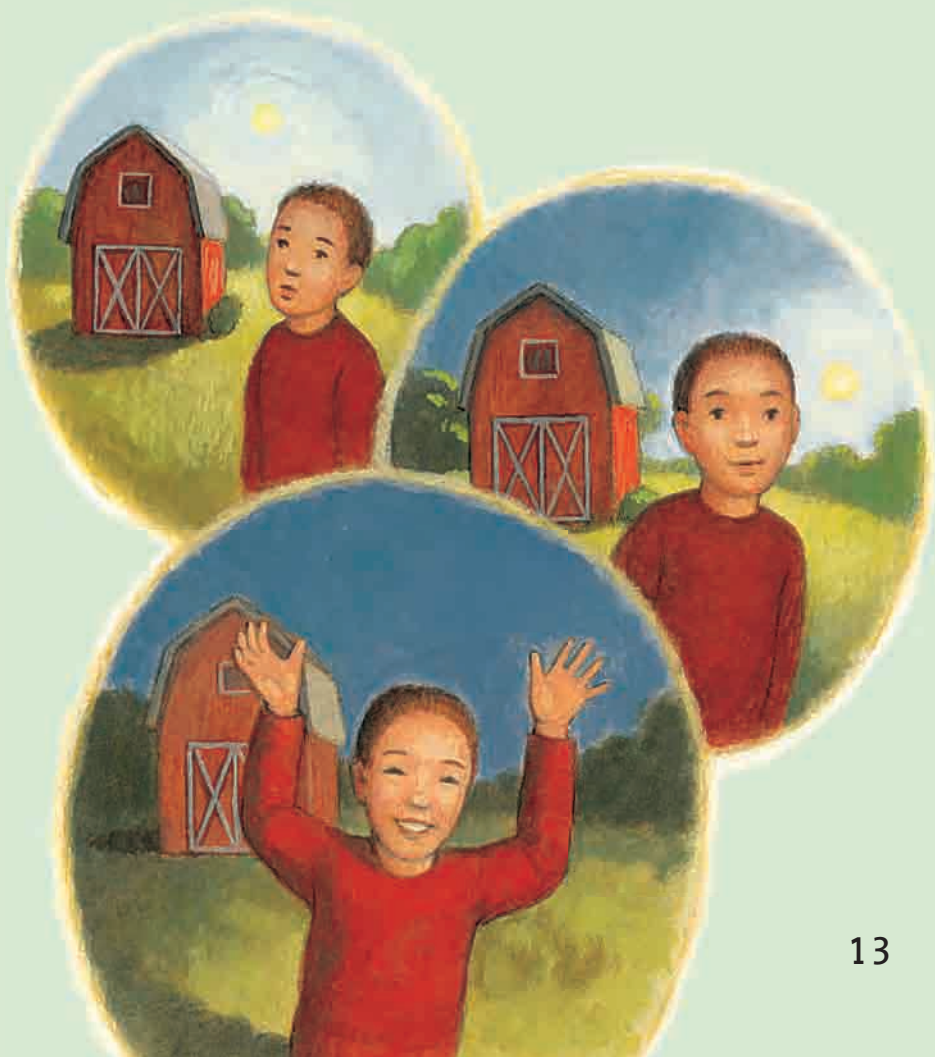

Mom tells Dwight, “Bats eat bugs at night. Bats do not need bright light to get bugs.”

Dwight hears a slight peep,
but not a bat is in sight. Mom tells Dwight, "Sit tight. If the time is right, the bats will take flight."

Dwight sits tight as the light fades. It fades and fades. At last, the sun sets.

Suddenly, Dwight spies a bat. It flies right past Dwight. What a fright! Lots of bats take flight. Mom was right. Bats do take flight at night.

Black bats dip and glide in the night.
A plump bug flies right past a bat. The bat dips and gets the bug. Gulp!

It gets late. The bats eat lots of bugs. Bats might like to eat late at night, but Dwight tries to sleep. Mom tells Dwight, "Sleep tight."
